011 056-9

This image shows a close-up of a black metal component, likely a part of a mechanical assembly. The component has a white label with the text "011 056-9" printed on it. There are several circular openings or ports, some with handles, and a small electrical connector with a wire. The component is mounted on a red base. The background is white.

A detailed close-up of the front of a black steam locomotive. The central feature is a large, circular boiler door with a white rectangular label in the middle containing the number "011 056-9". The door is secured with several bolts. Above the door is a small circular component, possibly a pressure gauge or valve. To the left and right of the boiler are large, dark, curved cowcatchers. Below the boiler, the front of the locomotive's frame is visible, including two large, circular headlights. The background is out of focus, showing a red object on the right side.
